THE PERSIAN ṢŪFIS

CYPRIAN RICE, O.P.

GEORGE ALLEN AND UNWIN LTD

The author was first introduced to Persian studies when, as a 'Student Interpreter' in the Levant Consular Service, he studied Arabic, Persian and Turkish at Cambridge under Professor E. G. Browne and Professor Reynold Nicholson (1912-1914). At the same time he realized the value of Persian thought in any attempt to draw East and West together. He entered the Dominican Order in 1919, and, in 1929 was invited to come to Persia by Mgr. Adrian Smets, then Apostolic Delegate in Teheran, where he entered into close and constant contact with many Persian writers and Professors and especially the venerable Ni'matullahi Dervish, Sheikh Shamsul 'Urafa, to whom he is greatly indebted. In its modest way, says the author, this book would be a token of his gratitude to these men and of his admiration for the Persian genius.

Catholic readers may be glad to know that this book has the Nihil Obstat and Imprimatur of the Dominican and Diocesan authorities in Rome.
